REINVENTING MIC

"Made in Michigan is something special in North America, in the Americas, and around the globe," Governor Rick Snyder says. "If you want the highest quality products, you look for that name and you know you're gonna get it."

Governor Snyder recently saw first-hand two examples of the "Made in Michigan" quality -- and the great jobs that go along with it.

More and better jobs are headed to Owosso-based Midwest Bus Corporation thanks to a new $31 million contract to remanufacture 192 public transit buses for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority. New employee and military veteran Matt Ellithorpe says he sees a bright future at the company.

"I believe that Midwest Bus is going to grow even further than what it is now," Ellithorpe said. "We had 30 active employees when I hired four months ago, and we're up to 50 now, just in this building, and we're going past 100."

Michigan Sugar Company

"Made in Michigan" isn't just about what we manufacture; it's also about what we grow and produce. The Michigan Sugar Company is a great example of how agriculture is playing a critical role in our state's comeback.

Governor Snyder visited the company, met with workers and thanked them for all they do to make great products, all while helping our state grow and thrive.

"You guys got us through the tough years, the missing decade there," Governor Snyder said. "Agriculture was a shining light during that period, but I'm even more excited for the next 20 or 30 years."
